Meghan Urisko
539 Portfolio Write Up
11/6/16

539 Portfolio Write Up

Portfolio HTML: http://murisko.people.si.umich.edu/Web%20Portfolio/homepage.html

Resources: I used code from previous sections and assignments as a base to build off of. I also consulted WC3 School and MDN. I used no templates.

Expected Grade: 90 - I did some extras, but I am not sure if my views are distinct enough.

Header: 8 pts - gave it color, fit nav in, centered, made it responsive, color contrast meets accessibility standards

Footer: 8 pts - gave it color, centered, made it responsive, color contrast meets accessibility standards

Nav: 6 pts - gave it color, it identifies current page CLEARLY, when you tab through, it's clear which items you are selecting, color contrast meets accessibility standards

Current Page: 6 points - I opted to have a line that goes all the way across instead of just underlining so it's easier to see, color contrast meets accessibility standards

Validates: Yep.

Background Image: 5 pts - present on all pages on desk / laptop view. It goes away on smaller screens as part of responsive design, so the smaller content is easier to see. Color contrast meets accessibility standards

Photogallery: 15 pts. It's present and I used javascript to make the thumbnails pop up full-sized with their alt text below the image as a caption

Responsive Design: Overall, the website was designed to be responsive and user friendly, starting with the html. I used % wherever possible. I changed the way my gallery works for the three formats: Mouse over thumbnails for desktop, on click for tablets, and no thumbnails, just large images to scroll through for mobile. The footer is fixed on desktop, but not on tablet or mobile. I also removed the background image from the template and mobile versions so that the smaller screens can have a clean, less crowded look. Overall, I think my design responds to different displays while keeping a consistent branding.

CSS Classes:10pts - I have more than 3 classes that are all well styled.

Media Query: 5 points - it's present and it works

Meghan Urisko
539 Portfolio Write Up
11/6/16

A-Level Work: Things I did that I think deserve the extra credit

-used javascript to make gallery
-payed special attention to color contrast standards - worked with a black and white background image for this reason.
-made sure nav menu was easy to tab through for accessibility reasons
-used many classes!
-did not use templates - built everything from scratch because I am a strong lady
-used classes lessons to inspire functionality and built on them

Ready For Demo:

Uses Git-Hub: Please give me 5 points even though I erred. - user name: murisko. Currently it shows that I have 4 commits - I have been uploading changes twice a day since the 30th, but I forgot to hit the commit button because I am a dunce. Please take mercy on me and give me full points.